MRS. A. W. NICKLIN,
PHYSICIAN AND ELECTRICIAN,
No. 90 Front street, (up stairs), one door north of Kingsley's Brick Building.

MRS NICKLIN WILL CURE ALL ACUTE NERvous and Chronic Diseases with Electricity and Water, without the use of medicine, and will apply the Electricity according to Prof. W. R. Wells' theory. Mrs. N. is experienced in the practice of medicine, but has done almost entirely away with its use, believing that ELECTRICITY IS THE ONLY SAFE REMEDIAL AGENT for the Cure of Disease. Medical men generally suppose that there are many causes for the various diseases in existence, and that one disease may have various causes in nature to produce it. We contend that there is but one grand cause for all disease, and this is a loss of balance of the two sources of Electricity in the part or parts diseased.
We apply the current with sponges and never shock the patient, and would have you bear in mind that we have one of Prof. Wells' Oxide-Current Electro-Galvanic Batteries, and can purify the blood, remove mercury from, build up and give tone to the system. We can cure the worst cases of Rheumatism, Sore Eyes, Deafness and all other curable diseases that the human family is subject to. While the gossiping part of society say they have no faith in [illegible], we do not require any faith, but just give it a trial. You need not ask your physician if it will do you any good, for he knows nothing about the use and practice of one of Prof. Wells' batteries.
We are prepared to Board and Lodge those who come for treatment, and will spare no pains in supplying the best hygienic fare. We shall require terms of board [illegible] in advance. All [illegible] in regard to treatment, should be addressed,
MRS. A. W. NICKLIN, Portland, Oregon.

From Canyon City.

CANYON CITY, Grant county, Oregon,
May [illegible], 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:—

The past winter has been one of unusual severity for this portion of Oregon. From [illegible] to April the whole country was so completely frozen as to prevent any mining operations. During those months the general complaint was—no water: at the present time the cry is—"too much of that element." The weather having turned warm, the snow which fell in the Blue mountains to an unusual depth is now fast melting away, and as a consequence is our little town is threatened with inundation. Already the turbid waters are streaming under many of the houses on the main street. In consequence of the great rush of water, work on many of the claims in the creek has been abandoned for the present, and the miners have turned their attention to hill diggings above the creek, some of which pay well, if I am correctly informed. Town Gulch is a small gulch about one mile in length, and runs through the [illegible] end of Canyon City: this gulch has never been worked until this season. I learn that miners are now realizing good pay, as far as worked, in that locality; one piece weighing $13 was taken out of one of the claims a few days since.

Marysville is a flourishing little mining town, situated about one and a half miles east of this place. In that locality much prospecting has been done during the past winter, and much good mining ground developed. A number of basins back of the town have been discovered to be rich, and already several tunnels are being cut through the rim rock in order to reach the channel of an ancient stream now hidden by slides from the Blue Mountains.

Prairie Diggings are situated about two miles east of Marysville. Some of the claims, I learn, are paying good wages at that camp. New diggings were found last fall on the tributaries of the middle fork of John Day's river, Vincent Creek, and Elk Creek. All of these bid fair to remunerate the toiling miner during the spring, summer and fall. The main middle fork has been partially prospected and tolerable fair prospects obtained, although the bed rock has never been reached. But the greatest discovery which has been made in this section is the Elk Creek gold quartz lode. It is a well defined lode, from eight to twelve feet in width, the vein being about three feet in [illegible] with easterly dip; direction of lode north east and south west, and has been traced and is now claimed for a distance of five miles. Good prospects are obtained in the casing as well as the vein, specimens of the rock sent over here and crushed yield at the rate of from $75 to $300 to the ton, and this from out-croppings. The decomposed quartz on the lower side of the ledge prospects from twelve to forty cents to the pan. The lode was discovered by Mr. John N. Reid, the same gentleman who discovered the North Star lode on Humbug Creek, Siskiyou county, California.

One Company is now engaged in sinking a shaft, in order to ascertain more satisfactorily as to its richness. The lode is near Elk Creek, about thirty miles north of Canyon and 125 or 130 miles south of Umatilla Landing. A party of Frenchmen arrived in town a few days since, and report of having sunk down on a quartz ledge [illegible] five feet, at Vincent Creek, and obtained rock from which rich prospects of gold and silver were obtained, and it is their opinion, that it is the same lode discovered at Elk Creek; if so, its length must be some 20 or more miles. Owing to deep snows, it is impossible to trace it at [illegible]. Should the rock continue to prove rich, Elk Creek, as the workmen go down, arrastras will be forthwith erected and the quartz fully prospected, preparatory to erecting mills.

Fine, spruce and fir timber is abundant throughout the Middle Fork mines. Several whipsaws have been kept running during the winter, and a new town laid out christened Susanville, in honor of Mrs. Susan Ward, the pioneer female of the new mines. Elk Creek is now being worked for a distance of three miles. Placer mines have been found in a flat between Elk and [illegible] creeks; but the supply of water is very limited. It is reported that another rich [illegible] has just been discovered in the vicinity of [illegible]. "Quartz on the brain" is very prevalent in Canyon City. Already "feet" have changed hands at fair prices, considering that but little is yet known of the depth and richness of the ledge. This section of Oregon offers the most flattering inducements to prospectors, both for quartz and placer mines. Burnt River, 35 miles east of Canyon presents, from its head to its mouth, the best indications as an auriferous region that I have yet seen in this State or Idaho, and very little prospecting has ever been done in this locality in consequence of the scarcity of water in the small gulches during the past two years. Clark's Creek is a tributary of Burnt River, about 35 miles from its head, and has been successfully worked the past two years, but the water on that stream lasts but a few months. Gold is found there from the bed of the creek to the summit of the mountain. Clark's Creek is about eight miles in length, and takes its source in the Mormon Basin mountain.

A ditch, of large capacity, is now in contemplation, to convey the waters of Burnt river over a section of country 45 miles in length. This ditch could, when completed, water the northern slope of Burnt river, including the entire length of Clark creek. The soil is of such a nature that ploughs could do the principal part of the work on the ditch, nearly the entire distance, eight or nine miles, however, would necessarily have to be flumed or cut through bed rock. The situation of Mormon Basin being on the highest point in that region, the ditch could not be sufficiently elevated to benefit that camp, which I believe is the richest on the Pacific coast. [illegible] creek—another small stream heading in the same mountains and emptying into Willow creek, thence into the Malheur—I learn is paying well at this time. Besides the mining localities of this section, already mentioned, we have Dixie creek and Granite creek, too well known, however, to need any description. The main John Day river has been tunnelled by the Hardscrabble Company, below the mouth of Canyon creek, and good prospects found. The Company have suspended operations on account of high water, which has backed up in their tunnel.

There is no necessity in miners travelling to the far East Boise or Kootenai, in search of gold mines. I would not willingly disparage [illegible], the reported gold discoveries of the [illegible], but the experience of the past has abundantly shown, that in regard to such discoveries, distance has always invested them with a degree of enchantment which was sure to be dispelled by the hand of reality. Prudence therefore, I think, should induce some hesitation before accepting as a conclusion not likely to prove erroneous, that all who may bend thither their steps, will be blessed with the rich rewards now so [illegible]. Experience, however, is a hard school, and one to which many learn sad lessons; [illegible] fortunately, such lessons are too apt to be soon forgotten. If an industrious class of miners would turn their attention to this section of country, watered by John Day's, Burnt, Powder and Malheur rivers, no doubt that in time, they would be amply rewarded by striking good diggings; and to the quartz miner, there is no better field on the Pacific coast.

The sad intelligence of the assassination of President Lincoln was received here with [illegible] overwhelming sorrow by both parties—Union and Democrat. On Tuesday last, a large audience was assembled at the Court House to do honor to the memory of our late Chief Magistrate. The meeting was addressed by Father [illegible] of the Catholic Church. Prayers and benedictions were offered up and a series of appropriate resolutions adopted. On the 5th obsequies will be held in the Catholic Church agreeably to [illegible] received from the Archbishop of Oregon.

Business is beginning to revive in Canyon City; the saloons are crowded every evening. The hurdy gurdy institutions are nightly thronged and seem to be doing well. The prospect [illegible] favorable for a good yield of the precious metal [illegible] the present season.

A new ditch has been completed this Spring, which makes the fourth now conveying water over the entire mining ground yet discovered. There are several sawmills, [illegible] water power, kept constantly going, and one new flouring mill is in process of erection by [illegible] & Co., and will be in running order by the 10th inst.

The stage from Dalles [illegible] with a full load of passengers. In fact, [illegible] stages are always full. He makes regular semi-weekly trips, notwithstanding the high waters and Indian depredations on the road. Wheeler's line of stages is one of the most convenient institutions we have, as all our letters and papers reach us by that conveyance.

The New Nation

It was T. Starr King who by the magic of his mind, and the wonder of his eloquence held our souls in thrall while he pictured to us "the New Nation to arise after the war." Death in his harvestings has gathered the spirit of T. Starr King to its home, but we who listened to see the dawning of the day of which he spoke, and the breaking light of its early morning sends peace and happiness to the hearts of watching and waiting millions. Already the soldier bivouacs in peace where lately every thicket was filled with hostile foes, already the picket guard forgets his watch because he is no longer before hostile lines, and knows that the rebel sharp shooter who so lately sought his life, has gladly laid down his arms and gone home grateful for the promised peace. Already the sentry who paces his solitary rounds forgets the camp in the happiness with which he thinks of those who wait for him at home.

The last great battle has been fought and won, and the soldier sleeps soundly in his tent, forgetful of wars rude alarms, dreaming of the hour when he can fight his battles over again to the peaceful circle of listening villargers at home. "Grim visaged war has smoothed his wrinkled front," and "stern alarms are changed to merry meetings." The angel of peace is no stranger, for at last we feel his presence, and know that he is here.

There are ever cases in adversity, and however much we may, as a people, have lost and suffered during the long, cruel year's of civil strife, much good has been accomplished, and memorable events, the deeds of great and good men, and the workings of the infinite mind in their accomplishment, have become portions of our history. The world moves on, however much individual life may assert against it. In the progress of events—perhaps by the only possible means—slavery is destroyed. The bane and curse of it is removed, self-slain in the madness of the suicide.

No bar exists to-day to a truer, purer and more intelligent civilization. Geographical divisions are no longer synonymous with hostile sentiment, for whatever of that remains will yield to the era of good will that must invariably follow peace. There will be a shifting and mingling of population; an infusion of the western free and independent character with eastern thrift and industry into the Southern States, and even the misdirected chivalry of which Southern society has been so proud and boastful, attuned to the uses of the present time, may lend a not unhappy influence to the homogeneous whole. The time must come when we can be what we have never been since slavery was ambitious of dominion—one people in feeling and in fact. The new nation must eclipse the glories of the old, and the march of empire on this continent commence anew. With freshly infused life, we can achieve a greater fame, acquire a prouder eminence, and, turning our swords into plowshares and our spears into pruning hooks, in all the arts, whether of common life, or those that inspire the pencil and the muse, vie with the world.

War not only shows the qualities of the soldier, but is a school for the statesman, the poet and the sage. History shows that it quickens the intellect, and developes the qualities of men. The warlike nations of antiquity were the most renowned in the arts and sciences, and the warlike ages have left from the past the most enduring monuments of greatness. Only when enervated by the wealth and luxuries of peace, did Rome forget its greatness; and while we believe that the purer civilization and enlightened Christianity of our time is consistent with peace, still right must triumph by power, when necessary, and popular government would be a by-word and a mockery, if the people could not as ours have done—rise equal to any emergency and trust the full power of the Nation in the hands of its rulers when need be. It needed that our principles and institutions should be illustrated by this experience, and that the integrity of the people should be tried as by fire. Suddenly the rebellion has melted away, and the lesson remains to us forever. The youth, who by millions have fought this war, have proved a devotion to their country that has no parallel. The experience of the battle field has been to these young men a schooling that will develope in the present generation more energy and power than have gone before it. Its consequence will be seen in giant intellect, developed from private life, for as Grant and Sherman were advanced from the ordinary walks of life and have become National heroes, so many another, by the impulse of the times, has looked upward, and will strive to reach the highest point. The deeds of the present will be written in immortal prose and verse. They will be celebrated in song and transferred to canvas by the pencils of painters yet unborn. The career of the Nation has commenced anew, and its future will have no equal. It remains for us to remember the lessons taught us at such cost, and make that future both honorable and great.

MAXIMILIAN. We notice that the general opinion expressed by European journals since the fall of Richmond is, that the Franco Austrian Empire in Mexico is inevitably a failure. We are inclined to coincide with that view of the case, but the entrance of a French fleet into Guaymas and the capture of that place does not show a disposition to abandon the effort. The rebellion has failed very signally and suddenly, and the Mexican Empire may need some of the same experience the Confederacy had, to induce it to dry up as the Confederacy did. There is nothing to hinder it at present, but the Generals of Jeff. Davis seem willing to take the job in their own hands, and as thousands of their old rank and file seem willing to follow them thither, we may soon hear that the Liberal party has received reinforcements in men whose determined valor has never been surpassed, and who may there put it to a much better use than they have been [illegible].

BEAUTIFUL CONSISTENCY.—The week before President Lincoln was assassinated, the Sonora Democrat contrasted the character of Benedict with that of the President, declaring that in the future, "Benedict by comparison, will stand out in clear relief, an angel of light." The next issue it was draped in mourning for the President's death. That is about an average specimen of Copperhead consistency, and the only reason why our Oregon cotemporaries did not make the same comparisons, was simply because they did not have the originality to conceive and express it. If we had files of them to refer to, we could prove their "loyalty" by a multitude of similar sayings expressed, as they have mental ability and moral depravity developed. What they have not said was what they could not think of. The wonder is, that they have the effrontery to live and look as badly as ever.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3.—A [illegible] in Washington street, [illegible] Michael [illegible] goods store, and [illegible] daguerrean gallery on Dupont street were also [illegible], together with two buildings adjoining, one of them occupied by a jeweler and a liquor dealer, and the other used as a tobacco store and cigar manufactory. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

A wretch named Jas. Lacon, was arrested in Montgomery street yesterday for using treasonable language and rejoicing at the assassination of President Lincoln.

Another wretch named Cutler, was brought to this city yesterday by Sheriff Caldwell, of Santa Cruz, charged with the same offence.

On Thursday next, by invitation of the San Francisco and Alameda railroad company, the children of the Protestant Orphan Asylum, will make a pic nic excursion to Alameda. A similar invitation has been given by the railroad company to the Catholic Orphan Asylum.

A quarrel took place between Michael Huggins and Madison Spaulding, corner of Lombard and Varness Avenue. Michael is under arrest for beating Spaulding with a shovel and making him tear down the fence he had just completed.

The annual meeting of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce will take place to-morrow.

Among the excursions from this city to the surrounding country, were the Irish American Benevolent Association, which went on a picnic to Angel Island; the German Regiment, Col. [illegible] Tislet, which went to Alameda, and an excursion to San Quentin for the benefit of the San Rafael School of Orphans.

Major Andrews, commandant at Angel Island was the recipient at the hands of the Irish American Benevolent Society, of a superb regimental sword belt suitably inscribed.

Thos. Toleland, a tanner, was assaulted on Saturday night about 11 o'clock by an unknown ruffian near the Spring Valley House, knocked down and badly injured about the head and face.

The heated term has passed and the weather has resumed its usual temperature.

The bottom is out of the stock market again. The following are the closing prices of some leading stocks: Savage, 1300; Gould & Curry, 1550; Belcher, 1020.

Legal Tenders, 71¾a71¾.

Flour at healthy jobbing trade prices, and there is some inquiry for export at uniform prices. A sale of 4,000 sacks of Chili, in bond, was made for export to Mexico, it is understood, at a full figure. Private advices from Chili, to April 2d, advise us of an advance in flour to $8a$8 25 per barrel, with five new charters for Australia.

Wheat remains quiet without any disposition of relaxation in prices. Barley is very dull, and heavy sales of 600 sacks of Bay is reported; choice brewing at 2¼ and 700 sacks at 2½ cents per pound. Hay—sales of five or six hundred bales, comprising three cargoes, at $18a$20 per ton.

Arrived: bark Agnes Benfield, 172 days from Liverpool and brig Johanna, 166 days from Indian [illegible].

FOREST GROVE, May 5, 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

What is of interest to those here, is not necessarily so to others; nevertheless, may we not believe that the annual commencement of this college is note-worthy, and that the public will expect that it be reported.

The anniversary exercises were of more than ordinary interest. Hon. H. P. Rose delivered a stirring address, animating to all, particularly pupils before the Society of Associate Alumni.

The orations of the college students were of marked ability, some of them showing a maturity of thought that speaks well for the directors of the Institution. As yet, seniors do not monopolize the day, but college students, and of all grades are brought before the public with original pieces at this time, when as years roll by and the classes increase in size, it will be necessary to hold the exhibitions of juniors and sophomores on another day.

The exhibition in the evening, with the dialogues, the tableaux and the dance went off finely. The house was very much crowded, and this together with the presence of several babies, produced a noise that unnerved the exercises. The representation of characters in the dialogues, the speaking, the harmony of many voices in the various pieces of music, left the impression upon a visitor, that the exhibition at Forest Grove could hardly be surpassed. The words of the music of the closing piece, were original with one of our young men. The words were very appropriate and the music good, together, they touched all hearts.

The Institution is flourishing, and promises to grow right on, and become an honor and a blessing to our State. AMICUS.

HOW IT WAS DONE.—Industry pays in Oregon. We have an illustration of this remark in our mind's eye. In 1859, a young farmer just married, having a few hundred dollars ready money, purchased and took possession of an abandoned farm up the Willamette Valley. The farm embraced some 200 acres. It had been formerly principally open land. Neglect had encouraged the growth of grubs and firs, which had taken possession of the most valuable parts of it. He made shift to live in the old shanty, built a barn and went to work. The land, which could be plowed, was put into wheat, the fences were repaired, and in the fall and winter of 1859-60, he commenced an onslaught on the grubs. Some eight or ten acres of these grubs about his dwelling were cut down, dug up, the roots drawn off, and the ground leveled. He had procured several hundred fruit trees to be ready for planting in the spring. We were then sure a good beginning had been made, and that if health continued, the energy of this man would secure him a well improved and profitable farm. Business required our attention in another direction, and we did not see this farm again until the fall of 1864. A space of about four years. We then visited it, found the grubs had been destroyed from the whole farm—the land once occupied by them had produced crops of wheat, hay, or been occupied as pasturage. A fine flock of sheep had been used to help clear off the grubs. The cattle and horses were fat, the young porkers were numerous, and the old ones promised lots of side bacon, shoulders and hams. The orchard was loaded down with fruit. The large barn was filled with wheat. There was a rapidly increasing stock of goods. Everything betokened abundance and prosperity. Need this be a solitary instance of prosperity among our young farmers? We think not.

THE ECONOMY REVIEW.—This paper, from which we have always differed, but have hitherto had only courteous controversies with, in its last issue, condescends to place itself upon the level of another paper of its ilk in this State, and indulges in coward[ly] abuse and personal reflections so naturally, that we are tempted to believe that it is no longer controlled by a gentleman. We differ from many, it is true, but we have the majority upon our side, and can afford to let some differ. We cannot afford to vary from our course and descend to the level of blackguardism. Such is not our idea of the business and we have no thought of commencing now. The [illegible] has several times seen fit to attempt to pass off reflections upon the Eugene Review and has no disposition now to commence indulging in them. Whenever the Review has a personal issue to make, let him choose a more honorable way than it at present seems bent upon. After having done so, it will be full time then to report its impressions. [illegible] really we think the Review must repent of a [illegible] kind of treason. He is welcome to pursue it in any manner that best suits him.

PLAIN TALK.—Annexed is an extract from a speech delivered by Andrew Johnson in the United States Senate in 1861, when so had that arch traitor, Jeff. Davis, under his hand and eye, and when the infamous rebellion was just opening. He spoke from the desk adjoining that occupied by Jeff. Davis, and almost shaking his finger in the face of the arch traitor, he exclaimed:

"If I were President of the United States, I would arrest you as traitors, I would try you as traitors—and if convicted by the tribunal, hang you as traitors."

The Wool Interest.

[illegible]—In your issue of May 4th among [illegible] of [illegible] a hint that farmers are [illegible] to consider themselves unfairly treated in the matter of the price paid for wool in this state. It is fairly possible that but one company and that composed of but few individuals, wielding a given amount of capital, and having an absolute monopoly of the manufacture of woolen goods [illegible] of the entire woolen trade in this State [illegible] spirit. If there was but one flour mill in the entire State there is no doubt that wheat would have a very unadvantageous tax upon it. The scarcity of cotton, and consequent advance of price of woolen fabrics, since the war began, has given a plan to obtain an undue advantage. The astute managers of the monopoly at [illegible] have taken advantage of the position they [illegible] hold, there is no doubt; and while the farmers were industriously shearing their sheep a wealthy and avaricious company was engaged with equal zeal in operating on the farmers. There is room for doubt which ship came nearest the [illegible]. Hereafter, while the opening of the cotton trade will very much narrow the margin of profits in producing woolen goods, the farmers will at least soon have a choice of markets for their wool in this State. The telegraph announces the arrival at San Francisco, of the Golden Fleece, a ship bringing a large lot of the most improved machinery for the production of all sorts of woolen goods, and which it is expected will soon be put in operation under the superintendence of Mr. Pratt, in the fine new fire proof building just erected by the Oregon City Woolen Manufacturing Company, at Oregon City.

This new enterprise, which has been prosecuted in the face of discouraging circumstances, with resolute and commendable energy, will soon be a candidate for public favor, and it is designed by its [illegible] that the style and finish of its goods, no less than durability, shall make them deservedly popular. As liberal a price will be paid for wool, as the changing state of the markets will permit, and the new company has no fine tastes in the shape of unsaleable or unserviceable goods to gratify, nor any recollections to entertain, of having imposed its own price for wool, on those who were too poor to seek a distant market.

Let us hope that the name of the ship by which the new company's working stock is brought on, will be a significant figure to represent the wealth which our country will develop in Fleeces of more real value than the classical Golden Fleece of olden times.

The people at large, whose interest is even more at stake than the stockholders in such new enterprises, will of course see their true policy, in affording generous encouragement to a wholesome competition, which will give those who have wool to sell, a chance, as well as those who buy.

One who is interested in raising no less than in manufacturing wool. CLACKAMAS.

THROAT, LUNGS, AND CHEST, INCLUDING EVEN CONSUMPTION.

PULMONARY COMPLAINTS
has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of [illegible] under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of these.

S. H. Finley, M. D., San Francisco, Cal.
E. Boyden, M. D., Exeter, Me.
Alexander Hatch, M. D., China, Me.
R. Fellows, M. D., Hill, N. H.
W. H. Webb, M. D., Cape Vincent, N. Y.
W. B. Lynch, M. D., Auburn, N. Y.
Abraham Skillman, M. D., Bound Brook, N. J.
H. D. Martin, M. D., Mansfield, Pa.

The proprietors have letters from all classes of our fellow citizens, from the halls of Congress to the humblest cottage, and even from beyond the seas; for the fame and virtue of Wistar's Balsam have extended to the uttermost bounds of the earth, without any attempt on our part to introduce it beyond the limits of our own country.

TO CALIFORNIANS AND OREGONIANS.
After October 1, 1863, all genuine WISTAR'S BALSAM of WILD CHERRY for the Pacific Coast will be enclosed in a new wrapper which will bear the printed names of both SETH W. FOWLE & Co., Boston, Mass., and JOHN D. PARK, Cincinnati, Ohio, as well as the fac-simile of the signatures of "I. BUTTS," "SANBORN & PARK," and "H. WISTAR, M. D."

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY IS FOR SALE BY REDINGTON & CO.,

Cure Your Cold, Save Your Lungs!

NEWELL'S
PULMONARY SYRUP
HAS CURED THOUSANDS
And it will Cure You!

"A Cough is generally the effect of a Cold, which has either been improperly treated or entirely neglected. When it proves obstinate there is Always reason to fear the consequences, as this shows a weak state of the lungs, and is often the forerunner of Consumption."—Buchanan's Domestic Medicine.

STOP THAT COUGHING!
Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but

Newell's
Pulmonary Syrup!
Is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by its surprising curative powers.

WHAT KILLED HIM?
Dr. Hall, in his "Journal of Health," speaking of the death of Washington Irving, asks the above question, and adds: "He might have remained with us for some years to come, had it not been for advice, kindly intended, no doubt, but given in thoughtlessness and reckless ignorance.

He Had a Cold!
Which, by some injudicious prescription, has been converted into asthma." Let me say to Dr. Hall that that "prescription" was not

NEWELL'S PULMONARY SYRUP.

KEEP IT IN THE HOUSE, use it freely, give it to your children upon the slightest indication of a cold, and you will think and speak of it as all do who have become acquainted with its merits.
REDINGTON & CO., Sole Agents,

GRATINGS, CEMETERY RAILING, BALCONIES, &c., Oregon street, bet. Front and Davis, Washington and Jackson, San Francisco.
All orders from the Interior, Oregon and Washington Territory, or any place on the Pacific coast, attended to with promptness and dispatch.
Mr. SIMS appreciates the past liberal patronage of his friends, and trusts he may continue to merit it in the future. For the information of strangers he would say that he feels confident that his experience in his particular calling is surpassed by none on this coast, which his superior work, sent to almost every town in California, Oregon, Victoria and Sandwich Islands, and to the best [illegible] of the best buildings in San Francisco, fully attest.
Also—A very large lot of Second Hand Shutters, of various dimensions all for sale at very low rates.

The Final Struggle Before Richmond

Wednesday, March 29th.

[illegible]

Correspondence of the New York World.

Headquarters [illegible] Wednesday Night. — The army [illegible] great part [illegible] to the left this morning, [illegible] around Petersburg. The main column moved out on the [illegible] road, which leads [illegible] toward Dinwiddie Court House, but [illegible] regiments kept across the open country, which has been almost entirely cleared of timber. Cavalry in considerable force preceded these. They crossed Hatcher's Run, the enemy falling back and skirmishing [illegible], and so passed to the right of the [illegible] battle field, relics of which in the shape of castaway blankets, a [illegible] horses, and scattered graves, yet sprinkle the waste of [illegible] and stump. Most of the country people [illegible] the retreating Confederates, though a sufficient number [illegible] their black and ruined homes to give us notice of the geography of the region. [illegible] has left its [illegible] nor household goods, nor anything which makes a land worth living for. Now and then we could see a hastily thrown up heap of earth, marking where a few ears of corn or sweet potatoes were interred, but these our stragglers resurrected and roasted in their dinner faggots. The country to the south seems to be richer and better settled than that above Hatcher's Run. Our troops moved in close and cheery order, very little loitering prevailing. Now and then a squad of prisoners voluntary or otherwise came in and dropped in the rear, and less frequently a solitary stretcher, borne upon men's shoulders, carried some bleeding martyr to the advance. Among these was a Captain of the Seventh Michigan, shot dead.

General Meade was among the foremost, and kept well in front. General Grant came up from City Point close before noon, and with his [illegible] some escort rode as far as Hatcher's Run, and stopped for the afternoon in a corn field, short of Gravel Run. The troops faced from this position to the north and west, lying about a mile [illegible] and covering the Quaker road, which runs from Sutherland's station, on the Southside railway, to Dinwiddie Court house. Gravel Run, which flows between headquarters and the front, is a [illegible] creek, running between sandy, wooded hills. Our men lay on their arms in the woods, and for two or three hours there was no firing. That ominous silence, which seems all the profounder, before a fight, was remarked as ever.

At two o'clock General Grant, who was [illegible] and handsomely attired, but quiet and grave as usual, lay down a while, covered with his [illegible] robe, while Gen. Meade attended to the direction of the columns. The ambulances and teams, for the most part, stopped on the north bank of Hatcher's Run.

Late in the day a portion of General Warren's command, pushing up the Quaker road toward the Southside Railway, was attacked by rebel forces belonging to Porter's and Johnson's commands. The engagement was short, decisive, and attended with little bloodshed. A hundred rebels or more fell at once into our hands, and these General Griffin sent to the rear. With Humphrey to second him, the advance column of Griffin pushed ahead, but no more fighting ensued. The campaign in this quarter may be considered fairly opened. Our troops are diverted and cheerful. The enemy seems no longer to fight with that headlong and persistent courage which has so often dismayed us. On the right the stillness of night has all day prevailed, but I hear the sound of teams and drum taps, and see that Quartermasters' men go to bed early.

Thursday, March 30th.

FULL POSSESSION OF THE BOYDTON ROAD GAINED.

The movement of this army initiated yesterday, but remaining undeveloped at nightfall, has been continued throughout to-day, notwithstanding a saturating rain, which set in about midnight and poured down almost without cessation until a late hour this afternoon. The country through which our army has been forced to move is not, during the driest season, at all adapted to expeditious marching, being not only swampy but thickly wooded. Hence although the greater part of the day has been spent in maneuvering, but little ground has been gained. Again, the enemy has been found in force strongly intrenched, close in front of some portions of our front, and obstinately insists on remaining, despite our desire to dislodge him. In fact, the advantages being all on his side, no attempt has been made to eject him. Under such circumstances our skirmishers have been pushing well up to the enemy's works, where they are covered by light works, hastily constructed, while our main line throws up stronger and more serviceable protection against the enemy's shells and attacks.

The surface of the ground once solid again, enables us to bring our artillery to our aid, and assaults will be more feasible.

Last night our left wing was formed as follows: Two divisions of the Fifth Corps on the extreme left of the infantry, resting their left flank near Gravelly Run, and crossing the Quaker road running eastwardly, and connecting with the Second Corps (one division (Ayres') deployed across the Vaughan road guarding against a flank attack. The Second Corps to the right of the Fifth, connecting with our main line at Hatcher's Run. The cavalry away to the left of the infantry.

Early this morning, General Ayres' division took its position, causing an extension of our line to the left, and throwing the left flank completely across the Boydton road, all of which was accomplished without provoking any resistance. In fact but few of the enemy were to be seen during the morning. Such of our forces as were across the pike were now withdrawn, and, to better cover the flank, were deployed along and facing the pike, with the left toward Dinwiddie.

Communication was soon after opened with General Sheridan along this road, and has continued without interruption.

The Second Corps has been simply moved forward about one and a half miles, passing Dabney's mills, and only halting when checked by the enemy's fortifications.

The movement of the Second Corps leaving a gap in our line in the vicinity of Hatcher's Run, General Turner's division of the Twenty-fourth Corps, which, with others, were lying in reserve, was employed to fill it, and to establish connection.

Meanwhile, two brigades of General Birney's colored division, and two brigades of General Foster's division, were pushed forward on [illegible] immediate front, when the enemy opened on them with great vigor, particularly on the [illegible] troops. This did not check them for an instant, however, gallantly driving ahead, they forced the enemy's pickets into their main works, and setting to work with shovel and pick, had soon secured themselves against the annoying fire of the enemy. A few hours afterward a strong line of works were erected on the same ground occupied by the rebel pickets.

So far the movement has resulted in our gaining [illegible] of the Boydton road, [illegible] to be sure, inasmuch as at the point where we [illegible] of the Southside road. [illegible] at present [illegible]

[illegible]

Friday, March 31st.

[illegible]

Again [illegible] through the gallantry of our troops and the energy of their commanders, [illegible] the Boydton plank, and [illegible] was the task of winning the position allotted.

[illegible]

[illegible] Pretty well, General, we hold [illegible]

[illegible]

Details of the Battle of Friday, March 31.

Correspondence of the New York World.

The fight was resumed, and was [illegible] ... in the day about three miles north of the plank road.

[illegible]

Early in the morning [illegible] Crawford's [illegible] position north of the plank road, which [illegible] gained on the previous day, without much fighting, was attacked by a large force of rebels, [illegible] enemy's right. The skirmish line [illegible] Third Division [illegible] honorable order, [illegible] after severe fighting for four hours, [illegible] within about two miles of the Southside Railroad, and within a short distance of the enemy's main line of works south of the railroad.

In the beginning of the attack, Pickett's [illegible] flank, and into the rear of our [illegible] held by the First Brigade of the Third Division, [illegible] brigade faced about, and, swinging its right [illegible] ceeded in driving it back from the rear, [illegible] such close proximity that several hand to hand fights [illegible] Captain Wayworth, of the Seventh Wisconsin, was captured by the enemy at [illegible] William Jackson, of his company, rushed into the enemy's ranks [illegible] instances occurred, but my time will not allow me to give them at present.

In the temporary repulse of the Fifth Corps it lost, perhaps, one hundred prisoners, and suffered severely in killed and wounded. [illegible] on retaking the ground it captured about four hundred of the enemy and two battle flags.

[illegible] when the latter fell back, and rendered very important service in checking the enemy's progress and holding them until the Third Division was rallied and formed anew. [illegible] The Second Division, General Ayres, was also in the fight, and performed its portion of the day's labor with great gallantry and skill. It held its portion of the line when the Third Division fell back, and subsequently drove the enemy two miles and a half. The Third Division, however, deserves equal credit with the others, [illegible] heaviest force of the enemy, and occupied a more exposed position.

When I left the front at four o'clock, we were [illegible] the enemy slowly back on this portion of the front, and heavy firing some four miles [illegible] on the left indicated that Sheridan was engaged with the enemy on the line of the Southside Railroad. The firing appeared to be [illegible] slowly toward the position he occupied, and the general opinion was that [illegible] his advance. The only report [illegible] from him was at about noon, [illegible] that everything was progressing favorably with him.

It is impossible to conjecture the loss on either side in this part of the engagement. [illegible] very [illegible] and very difficult of access. Large details [illegible] bringing in the dead and wounded [illegible] A large portion of those [illegible] were rebels, and I was told that the enemy [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Third Division [illegible] General Meade [illegible]

The Second Division [illegible]

On the Second Corps' front the enemy used more artillery than on that of the Fifth, and had more substantial works. The Twenty-fourth Corps were engaged at [illegible] charged the enemy's skirmishers, [illegible]

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus, CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it, if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
